

Dear Blue Mountain customers:

Blue Mountain Brewery is issuing a recall on 12oz. bottles and 12oz. cans of Batch 35 "A Hopwork Orange" (the batch number is clearly marked in the "enjoy by" window on the side of the bottle and on the top of the can-carton of the 6-packs of cans).

This batch has a wild yeast contamination that is causing refermentation in bottles and cans when left warm for an extended period. Please note this is not a health hazard insofar as consumption of the beer; the concern, however, is the potential for bottles or cans to rupture.

If you have purchased this beer (and have proof of purchase) and had a bad experience because of over carbonation or foaming, please contact us at martha@bluemountainbrewery.com so we can attempt to compensate you.

Our customers' satisfaction is Blue Mountain Brewery's #1 priority, and we sincerely apologize for this error.

Sincerely,

Taylor Smack
Blue Mountain Brewery
